

Alliances better than finding blame

Terrorism is clearly one of the biggest issues that are attempting World peace. Delegations of several countries in ECOSOC are trying to find a way to face this problem, starting in the funding of projects to fight terrorism, with the intervention of the delegation of the World Bank, to later solve the social consequences that this issue brings to so many countries from around the world, always taking into account the economical factors. Even when it is expected for the delegations in this committee to try to find solutions in order to finance ways to end terrorist attacks, some delegations such as Turkey and Iran are focusing on finding the blame on the actions taken by specific countries like the United States. Even when the solutions proposed by Western countries like as the French Republic, the United States of America and the United Kingdom might not be the taken by the Eastern countries as a reasonable solution. It is clear that the solutions cannot be economical blockades or attempting to cut oil supply for some countries. As ECOSO's goal is to foment the sustainable development of the world's economy, delegations must have innovative proposals in order to create solutions that will generate expansion in economical, social and environmental aspects.

Ema Gómez